Data Analyst

As a result of wanting to emigrate from South Africa, My wife and I jumped in the car in the summer 2020 and headed for East Coast of South Africa, I had a Construction Company that I was in the process of closing down. I wanted to follow my newly found interest in programming, I love solving problems and the more complex the better. I started some intro Courses in different programming languages and Python seemed to be the best option for the courses that was accessible to me in South Africa. I then enrolled and completed my Data Science Course in January of 2022. I am currently employed by the company I studied at as a student Mentor, Helping them with coding challenges and some support throughout the bootcamp.

My Wife and I are still hunting for the opportunity to life and work in Europe as we both love to travel, We also have friends and Family living in Europe.

Since graduating I have been focussing all my time and energy on creating a business in South Africa and I have managed that quite successfully, I have worked and owned Businesses in the Construction, Masonry, Food and Beverage and manufacturing industries. I have Cut ties with all of them and focussed all my time and energy into becoming a Data Analyst, for me Working at my current place of employment is only the first step of realizing our dream.

The Next step is to Live and work in Europe..
